K. Property Tax Update – Williams gave an update of the proposed increase called “Save our homes from excessive property taxes amendment” that will go on the November ballot and would need to be approved by at least sixty percent of the voters. If the amendment is approved this would increase the homestead exemption for primary homes to $150,000 in 2027, $250,000 in 2028 and would adjust annually for inflation in beginning in 2029. Florida residency requirements are needed to qualify for the increased exemption for those moving to the state on or after January 1, 2027. For all levies other than school district levies, it would limit increases in the assessed value of all non-homestead property to five percent annually beginning in 2027, down from ten percent currently. The amendment would restrict local government’s ability to use property taxes to finance public services that fall outside of the following categories: public safety, education and schools, infrastructure, natural resources, bond issuance and debt service payments, local government employee retirement benefits, and operations and administration expenses related to certain local government employees. Williams related a few articles regarding the consequences to several Florida counties if the voters approve the tax break. Matlock informed everyone that this was something that the Council does not vote on.

L. City Website Update – Williams informed everyone that the new City website would be live by the end of the summer.

M. Employee Interchange Agreement - Risk Management – Williams explained the ninety-day agreement with the County which would allow the Deputy City Manager Bradley and our new hire that will start on Monday to assist the County with risk management duties. The County only has an administrative assistant in their department for the entire County and is currently advertising for employees for their Risk Management Department. The County would reimburse the City for hours worked for the County. Williams informed the County this would be part-time help, mostly our new employee Jaelyn Flatt with assistance from Bradley when needed. Still voiced her concerns about City priorities not being met. Williams informed everyone the City is the priority; it will be part time assistance only until they hire additional personnel.
